Bioresonance according to Paul Schmidt

Steigenberger Hotel | Frankfurt Airport

1. Introduction

For the first time, national and international therapists practicing this technique will be brought together by Rayonex Biomedical GmbH for the 1st World Congress of Bio-resonance according to Paul Schmidt.

The world congress' central theme is based on the use of the Rayocomp PS 10 and Rayocomp PS 1000 polar devices.

Over the course of the two congress days, presentations in English and German will introduce a total of six topics from bioresonance according to Paul Schmidt, with strong emphasis on the practical application. Often therapists only work with a small part of the vast spectrum of uses offered by bioresonance according to Paul Schmidt. The congress' aim is to inspire a broader use. Invitations to the 1st World Congress have been issued in as many as 34 countries.

As each presentation will be given a total of six times, every delegate will have the opportunity to attend each presentation in one of the two languages. Each delegate will receive a participation schedule to ensure that delegates are distributed evenly across the six rooms throughout the congress. You will receive your participation schedule in advance of the congress.

As the overall limit for the number of congress delegates is 300, each of the six rooms will be accommodating a maximum of 50 delegates.

You can book your overnight accommodation directly at Hotel Steigenberger. You will receive an impressive discount if you mention that you are attending the World Congress of Bioresonance according to Paul Schmidt when you make your reservation, so that you will only be paying 95.00 EUR for a single room per night.

7. The book on bioresonance according to Paul Schmidt

The first step back to health recovery should not necessarily be a therapy! It is within our power to eliminate disturbance fields, thus taking the first step forward towards recovering and maintaining our health.

But what kind of holistic method is suitable for finding out whether the causal disturbance is due to electro-magnetic pollution, geological disturbance fields, bacteria, viruses or parasites? What about the state of our acid-alkaline balance? Is there a lack of minerals, trace elements or other important nutritional compounds in our organism? How can we find out whether the principle nutrient, our daily water, has the quality to satisfy the needs of the body?

With this book, written in a logical and easy to comprehend manner, the reader will become more familiar with the holistic approach of Bio-resonance according to Paul Schmidt. Special attention has been paid to enabling the reader to put the written word into practice. With the help of many examples, a sound foundation of basic knowledge is established, so we can move on to the methods of testing and harmonising from there. These are easily learnt and applied.

True to the holistic approach, the causal influences mentioned before are discussed. On this basis, the book goes into detail concerning the therapeutic possibilities of Bio-resonance according to Paul Schmidt. Testing and harmonising the energy status, the body polarities and the Chakras are part of this spectrum. They are followed by solutions for recognising deficits in organ systems and restoring their equilibrium. Also, a method is introduced to address a complex illness in all its features. We become familiar with preparations and drug tests, allergen tests and harmonisation are introduced. In order to include body substances like blood, saliva, urine etc. in the therapy concept, another focus is placed on the transfer of energetic structures to the organism or to suitable carrier substances. Finally, special areas of Bio-resonance according to Paul Schmidt are addressed. For instance there is acupuncture oscillation therapy for stimulating or sedating the meridian points using frequencies instead of needles. The book also contains a chapter about the application of bio-resonance in veterinary medicine, particularly for horses and dogs.

An appendix comprising over 200 pages completes this book; here you can find all lists, tables and copy patterns required for working with Bio-resonance according to Paul Schmidt. There, for example, you can find frequency tables for human as well as veterinary medical application, check-up lists, the frequency atlas of the human body, frequencies of all the elements listed in the Periodic Table of Elements and such of pathogens, more than 30 elaborate control plans of the human organism, the 14 meridians with illustrations of the acupuncture points and their corresponding frequencies as well as many other interesting details.

The book is intended for members of the healing profession and their patients but also for other users and all people with a preference for holistic, gentle, alternative medical approaches.
